YEAR ROUND WATER SAFETY

Practice water safety/awareness at all times. Red flags mean stay on the beach and out of the water due to dangerous water conditions. Never go in the water while there are red flags, even if you see other people doing so.

There can be rip currents in Lake Michigan. These powerful currents of water can sweep even the strongest swimmer away from shore. If you get caught in a rip current, swim along the shoreline until you can escape it. If you can't escape, float or tread water while yelling or waving for help instead of struggling and wearing yourself out.

Stay off ice shelves along the shoreline in winter as they are unstable and extremely dangerous. People walking on them does not mean they are safe; it means people are unaware of the danger. You can suddenly fall through and then be unable to escape the frigid water because of the surrounding ice. You will quickly freeze.
